Confess Your Love!

On the first day of the college, I was wondering where to go and how to find my class. I randomly entered a classroom located on the first floor. In my tense moments, I was thinking about how the first class would be like. Just then a guy entered the class as a model would. He flipped his hair in style. My anxiety levels shot up, but I continued to look at him. I observed him keenly. My very first glimpse of him made me go crazy in no time. I sensed a flutter in my heart. Event to this day I feel it whenever I see him. I get excited and feel positive.
